

To all high school-age young men:

Where are you going?

Do you know what you want for your life?

Is your life missing something, and you are looking for more?

Come to Quo Vadis Days!

“Quo vadis,” Latin for “Where are you going?” is an important question to ask in our day and age. Many influences wish to push us in one direction or the other—when the most critical influence we should be following is God, our Father and Creator. Taking the time to come to Quo Vadis Camp will direct you better towards the true and eternal happiness that we know is heaven, or even change your life and turn you towards that final goal. It did it for me!

In my own life, I was a “wanderer” in high school. My grades were good and I had some close friends, but my only ambitions were to play video games and have fun. Coming to Quo Vadis helped me to realize that there is something more, and it is worth pursuing. Myself and other high school young men, along with priests and seminarians, went to daily Mass, spent time in prayer throughout the day, listened to inspiring talks, shared meals, and did sports and other activities. I became open to God’s Will for my life and also to the possibility that His Will could be that I become a priest. Ever since I went to Quo Vadis, the purpose I saw for my life began to line up with the purpose God gave to it. I started to have a taste of true happiness and peace, and I have not turned back since!

To come to Quo Vadis, you do not need to be considering going to seminary. All you need to be is open to God’s call to holiness for all Christians, and to God’s specific calling for you.

Quo Vadis Days, a four day-long day camp from July 12-15, 8:00 AM – 4:30 PM for high school young men, will concurrently take place at 5 sites in the Archdiocese, including right here at Sacred Heart Parish. Join seminarians of the Archdiocese of Baltimore, and other young men your age, to explore what it means to answer the universal Christian call to holiness. Grow in your faith together through Mass, prayer, and small group discussions, participate in sports and activities, and share in meals and fellowship with other like-minded high school young men. Details on what to bring and wear will be provided after registration. For more information, contact the Vocations Office at quovadis@archbalt.org or 410-547-5426.
